Eng 2015H    Theory and Practice of Tutoring Writing “Theory and Practice of Tutoring Writing,” is an English/Honors College Writing Intensive (WI) class which addresses both the theory and practice of tutoring and the foundations of good writing. Therefore, in addition to theoretical frames for what writing tutors do, it focuses on hands-on craft and practical experience working with other writers. At its heart is a shared set of assumptions about tutoring writing. In order to help someone else competently, a tutor needs to have an expert command of the craft of writing herself. A tutor needs to know something not only about the practical application of rhetoric and composition theory, but also about the subtleties of verbal and nonverbal communication. Hands-on experience from both sides of the desk is a crucial part of the process of learning to work with other writers. Online tutoring is a valuable part of the skill set with both advantages and disadvantages over traditional face-to-face scenarios, and it makes considerable demands on the tutor's craft as a writer and as a reader of both prose and people. This course also prepares students to work as writing tutors, and, in fact, doing well in it qualifies them for a part-time job in the Writing Center in future semesters. Prerequisite: Engl 1000. A/F. This class meets Mondays and Wednesdays from 2:00-2:50pm. Students interested in the course should contact Dr. Rachel Harper: harperrp@missouri.edu

This course fulfills a lower division Writing Intensive requirement and General Education credit (Humanities).

Introduction to U.S. history since 1865, surveying political, economic, social, and cultural development of the American people.

Hist 1510H  History of Modern Europe
European history from the French Revolution to the present. During the period of this course, the western world was transformed from a traditional, aristocratic, agrarian order to the modern industrial society in which we live today. Even in our own country this transformation was accompanied by serious social strains and disruptions. In Europe, it resulted in a succession of major societal crises which caused intense conflict between 1789 and 1914, and, between 1914 and 1945, virtually tore the fabric of civilization apart. We will explore this traumatic transformation in all its social, economic, and political aspects, focusing on industrialization, class conflict, imperialism, Fascism, two world wars, the ultimate rise of mass democracy, and the eventual coming of the welfare state. Written requirements: Three short take-home papers, (each 20% of grade) a final examination during the exam period (20% of grade).

Pea St 3230H     Terrorism and Conflict Resolution
An exploration of terrorism as political violence, which extends beyond the acts themselves. The focus is on religious, ethnic, and ideological based movements, and the state and international reactions. Emphasis is on identifying & dramatizing the problems, and most importantly, conflict resolution or identifying a process leading to conflict resolution. Students will be organized into role playing groups so as to examine and present modern movements, the state & international response; e.g. No. Ireland, Spain (Basques), Chechnya (Russia), S. Africa, Rwanda, Blood Diamonds, Arab-Israeli, Kurds, India (Kashmir, Sikhs), Sri Lanka Tamil Tigers), Japan (Aum & sarin gas), Peru (Shining Path), Argentina, Columbia (FARC) & U.S. radicalism. One midterm, role-playing presentation, a term paper and final exam. Flexibility, choices & discussion emphasized. “Terrorism” is a rapidly growing subfield in the social sciences that focuses on the ability of relatively small groups to disrupt societies and challenge the established state by using violent methods that can be defined as terrorism. The response of the state also may involve terrorism. Societal and state terrorism essentially are modern phenomenon employing weapons, organizational methods, communications, and psychological elements that stem from increasing modernity. Religion, ethnicity and ideology are three major constructs that most commonly motivate terrorist movements, as well as the state. Leadership struggles and material incentives also become involved.

Phil 1000H     General Introduction to Philosophy
The aim of this course is to introduce you to some of the large issues in philosophy and its history. Thus we shall look at some classic texts, e.g., by Wittgenstein, Descartes, as well as some more recent ones, e.g., by Searle. My hope is that by the end of the semester you will have read some discussions about some important issues, learned some important distinctions in those areas, and come to value the importance of making distinctions. Some have said that Philosophy is the art of making distinctions. I agree and not the two aspects, the making of distinctions and doing so artfully. An Honors section makes several things possible: getting to know one another better, having regular and fruitful dialogue [which in my mind is an essential part of Philosophy], and having several longer writing exercises.

Phil 1100H     Introduction to Ethics
Introduction to different philosophical theories regarding when acts are morally right rather than wrong; when things are good rather than bad; nature of the "good life", nature of ethical reasoning and justification. Prerequisites: Honors eligibility required.

Honors eligibility required. This course may be restricted to Undergraduate Psychology Majors during Early Registration

Psych 4815H  Cross Cultural Psychology
This course will adopt a psychological approach to the study of the cross-cultural experience. We will spend our time investigating how culture affects and determines human behavior, thoughts, emotions, and interactions with others, on both individual and societal levels. In particular, we will focus on how various cultures shape correspondingly different behaviors and thought patterns in their respective members. The course will assume the form of a seminar with class discussions and group exercises. Its main goal is to combine current psychological theory, with semester-long cultural immersion projects in order to yield an in-depth academic and personal understanding of culture and its effects on human thought, emotion, and behavior. Written and audiovisual materials will further supplement and hopefully enhance your appreciation and understanding of the cross-cultural experience.

This course focuses on the economic and financial issues within the sport industry. The class will help students understand basic and complex concepts within economics and finance in a sport context, and to grasp the importance of financial and economic decision making.
